

GRADUATE STUDENT WORK SHOP

Medieval Tales of Textual Beginnings

This workshop is addressed especially to students of the following departments:

- Central, Eastern and Northern European Studies (CENES) / Germanic Studies
- French, Hispanic and Italian Studies (FHIS) / French and Spanish
- Classical, Near Eastern and Religious Studies (CNER)

Please register by emailing: cenes.reception@ubc.ca

Please mention your reading abilities

No reading in advance required

Wednesday, Sept. 4, 13:00 to 15:00

Refreshments will be served
Arts Penthouse

Dr. Beatrice Trinca is Junior Professor for Religion and Literature in European Medieval Culture at Freie Universität Berlin with a research emphasis on gender studies. In 2013/14 she is Alexander von Humboldt fellow at the University of Toronto

Medieval authors did not only invent genealogies for aristocrats - but also for texts. These stories pretend to shed light on the origins of texts, whereas they often rather obscure them.