

The quality of your facilitation is influenced by your own existential bearings and inquisitive disposition because one has to seriously and honestly question oneself if one intends to ask others meaningful questions. Different from being a guide who will bring you to the common hotspots, a facilitator moves along with what resonates for the participants. A facilitator who has the courage to develop this sensitivity has the potential to turn a CPI into a trans-formance instead of an arranged per-formance.

