THE LEGAL SCHOLAR COLLOQUIUM SERIES:
The Law School Research-Track Job Markets:
*Advice for PhDs and LLMs

The path to becoming a law professor is strewn with unspoken norms and expectations. This lunchtime seminar on The Law School Research-Track Job Markets will say the quiet bits out loud by exploring what practical early steps graduate students can take to position themselves for an academic job, and what a tenure-track professorship application package looks like. If you think you might want to be a law professor in the future, come along to hear, discuss and ask questions.

Please note that this session will be held both in person and via Zoom. If you are interested in attending kindly rsvp, by no later than Monday, November 15th, to: Maham Khanum: khanum@allard.ubc.ca, provide your name and email address and indicate whether you will be attending in person or by Zoom; once we know who will be attending by Zoom we will send the Zoom information.

Samuel Beswick

Assistant Professor, Peter A. Allard School of Law

Assistant Professor Samuel Beswick is a private law scholar with primary research interests in the areas of torts, unjust enrichment, limitations, remedies, and privacy. His current research concerns the temporal scope of judicial changes in the law. Dr. Beswick has published his research in leading common law journals, and has presented at workshops and conferences across North America and in the United Kingdom. He is the editor of the open access coursebook, Tort Law: Cases and Commentaries (2021 CanLII Docs 1859). He has held teaching positions at Harvard Law School, King's College London, and the University of Auckland.

The Legal Scholar Colloquium is a series of lunchtime talks for Allard Law students curious about legal academia. To see slide presentations and further information, visit <https://blogs.ubc.ca/legalscholar/>
