CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

Submission Deadline: March 15, 2017

BRIDGING GAPS: MAKING CONNECTIONS THROUGH SOCIAL RESEARCH

Social scientists are increasingly being called on to bridge many gaps: between theory and practice, across time and space, across disciplines, between ways of knowing, and between universities and the social world, among others. Meeting these challenges is particularly important in times of social, political, and legal division. We invite graduate students working in diverse areas of social science to present research that focuses on “making connections” in its design or its implementation.

Some examples of potential topics of interest:

- Integrating diverse methodological approaches
- Bridging fields through interdisciplinary research
- Intersections of identity, inequality, or ways of knowing
- Community-based research and partnerships
- Theorizing bridges or bridging theories
- Connecting global and local issues

Submission Instructions:

- Abstracts should be 150 - 250 words
- Please include your full name, discipline, university, and contact information
- Please send abstracts in .doc or .pdf format to ubc.gscs@gmail.com with the subject heading "GSCS 2017 Conference Abstract"

All social sciences/humanities disciplines welcome!
