Dear Dr. Pho:

Oral cancer screening, periodontal and caries risk assessments, smoking cessation and nutritional counselling, treatment planning, periodontal debridement, selective coronal polishing and fluoride applications are some of the necessary qualifications of a great clinician. These skills along with a baccalaureate in dental hygiene and relevant employment, have provided the theoretical background and practical experience employers would seek.

During my 3 years of practice, my clinical experience includes alginate impressions, polishing restorations, bonding lingual arch-wires, tooth whitening, administering topical local anesthetic prior to periodontal debridement, scaling and root planning, coronal stain removal and administering fluoride treatment. Additional experience includes digital radiography, Dexis CariVu, Velscope, nutritional assessment and counselling, smoking cessation counselling, oral cancer screening, and disease risk assessments and follow-up patient counselling.

I am currently completing my Bachelor of Dental Science Degree from the University of British Columbia. This program has taught me how to apply critical thinking skills to the practice of dental hygiene. For example, I have performed research and developed a feasibility study on the benefits of glycine powder air polishing and its implications for the reduction of dentinal hypersensitivity for patients with generalized gingival recession.

My references will confirm that I am a conscientious, diligent and reliable clinician – someone eager to collaborate as a team member and to further develop my clinical skills.

If you feel that my qualifications can complement your current team, I would welcome an interview at your convenience. I look forward to meeting you to discuss the employment opportunity with your practice. Please contact me during weekdays at Barbara.dobes@alumni.ubc.ca or telephone at (519)-897-1925.

Sincerely,

Barbara Dobes
