Dear Brittney,

Thank you for participating in my study titled, "The Role of Beliefs and Self-Determined Motivation in Teacher Candidates' Development of Practices that Promote Self-Regulated Learning". The overall intent of the study is to contribute to research that examines how teacher candidates' can be supported in their development of complex teaching practices throughout their teacher education programs.

Your dedication and commitment to the study over the course of your practicum has been greatly appreciated. Through your participation in multiple research activities (questionnaire; 5 interviews and 3 observations) you have made a significant contribution to educational research and practice. Once again, thank you for your reliability and willingness to share your practice and time. Your efforts will help to improve the experiences of future teacher candidates. I wish you every success in your chosen profession.

Sincerely,

Charlotte Brenner (PhD Candidate)
