First Impression

Your LinkedIn profile is concise, well-constructed and easy to read. It documented your exciting career and interests, as well as various social issues which you care a lot about. I am particularly impressed that you are able to present your personal and professional profile in detail without being too verbose. Profile pages like yours will surely attract readers' attention.

Photograph

Your profile picture makes the page stand out the most. I am sure it is professionally done and you are extremely wise to have chosen such an attention-grabbing colored blouse. This is a perfect headshot of you.

Summary

Brief and to the point – well done! I would suggest that you briefly introduce yourself before going into listing your professional works and photography portfolio.

Experience

You have listed four work experiences in this section. Your job responsibilities were listed in point form in your third job, and I would suggest that you do the same for the other three just to make it more consistent in style. Furthermore, it would be easier for readers to go through the list.

Volunteer Experience and Causes

It is nice to see that you have included three other sub-sections – Opportunities Veesha is looking for, Causes Veesha cares about, and Organizations Veesha supports. However, you could consider combining the two Vancouver Aquarium volunteer experiences since it is stated that these are annual events.

Certifications

No editing required.

Languages

No editing required.

Skills

No editing required. However, I would suggest that you place this category before Certifications.

Education

Please include a field of study under the University of British Columbia 2004-2006. Also, I would place this category before Certifications and after Skills.

Conclusion and Further Comments

Veesha has done a great job setting up her LinkedIn profile. It is inviting and has showcased her career and personal interests to a great extent. Perhaps you can also include a few relevant courses that you have taken so that your skills can be highlighted.
