MARCH IN EDST

Happy March everyone!

We hope you are all in good spirits now that the days are getting longer and feel a little bit warmer. We have so many exciting workshops to share with you this month that we know you will enjoy. On March 8th, we have two workshops for you -- the first is from our "Let's Talk" series. We're still continuing our conversation about photography, so if you have a passion for photography, or are just interested in learning more, this session is for you! Dr. Mona Gleason will also be talking to students about writing their M.A thesis -- if you're nearing that stage in your Master's program, you won't want to miss this one! Dr. Shauna Butterwick will be facilitating a workshop on "Publications in Progress" on March 22nd, and Dr. Donald Fisher will be "in" (for our monthly (Prof is in") session on March 29th. Finally, we are lucky to be hosting a workshop from 3 of our EDST graduates! Drs. Ee-Seul Yoon, Jude Walker and Graham Lea. Their talk is entitled, "From PhD to tenure track faculty", and will be helpful for anyone at the tail end of their doctoral program!

We also have a couple of student-led workshops this month -- on March 15th, PhD candidate Marcelina Piotrowski will be sharing her research on "Posthumanist methodologies, and environmental education and activism research". On March 16th, PhD student Shayna Hornstein will be facilitating an experiential learning workshop on the topic of "Embodied pedagogy to study communication across our differences". Come out and support your peers!

This month, we are asking that students RSVP 2 days before each event/workshop, so we can anticipate the number of attendees. Workshops with fewer than 5 people may be canceled. Also please don't forget about our annual EDST Research Day, which is taking place on April 7th this year in Ponderosa Commons - save the date!

Professional Development Series

Planning to Write Your M.A. Thesis

Dr. Mona Gleason

2:30pm - 3:30pm • SCARFE 210

In this workshop, Dr. Mona Gleason will share tips and strategies to help students to write their Master's thesis or MEd graduating project. This workshop will guide M.A. and M.Ed. students to plan ahead how to structure your thesis or graduating project, when to start writing, or how to organize your literature and data.

Professional Development Series

Exploring Embodied Pedagogy to Study Communication Across Our Differences

Shayna Hornstein

2:30pm - 4:00pm • TBC

In this workshop, Shayna Hornstein explores the notion of embodied and emotional learning (Freiler, 2008; Nguyen & Larson, 2015) and their relevance in social movements (Walker & Palacios, 2016). She will lead a variety of simple embodied activities for participants to explore the topic of communication across differences. The objectives of the workshop is to enable participants to experience and explore how their bodies can produce knowledge that they could use to communicate with others, and facilitate discussion on how embodied pedagogies may be implemented in various educational contexts.

Research Sharing Series

Folding Voice: Posthumanist Methodologies, and Environmental Education and Activism Research

Marcelina Piotrowski, Ph.D
Candidate

2:30pm - 3:30pm • SCARFE 210

This presentation focuses on the implications of posthumanist approaches to 'interview data' in a field such as environmental activism/

2017

2:30pm - 3:30pm • SCARFE 210

Professional Development Series

From Ph.D to Tenure Track Faculty

Drs. Ee-Seul Yoon, Jude Walker, and Graham Lea

12:00pm - 1:30pm • SCARFE 203

Do you want to know what it's like to move from being a PhD student to a tenure-track faculty in Canada today? What are some opportunities and challenges along this path? This panel gathers three unique perspectives on the transition from PhD to Tenure-Track Faculty in research intensive universities in Canada. The three panelists are relatively recent graduates of the Faculty of Education at UBC, and currently work as Assistant Professors at UBC and University of Manitoba.

Prof is In Series

Dr. Don Fisher Is In!

2:30pm - 3:30pm • SCARFE 210

Join Dr. Don Fisher in this latest installment of the "Prof. Is In" series! Enjoy an afternoon of casual conversation on anything related to your academic studies, and your life as a graduate student in EDST. This is a wonderful opportunity to receive first-hand knowledge and feedback from a professor in EDST!
