Dear Hiring Manager,

As an experienced dental hygienist and educator, the posting for the dental hygiene instructor with Canadian National Institute of Health (CNIH) piqued my interest. When reviewing the job requirements and your website, I was delighted to see that my qualifications and personal traits align with your needs and mission. As a current Bachelor of Dental Science (DH) undergraduate, I believe my coursework in research, technical writing, communicating and application of the most recent methodologies will make an excellent fit for your learning institution. My experience includes specializing in periodontics, clinical instructing, community volunteering and leading small groups.

I bring a set of talents that I trust will be valuable to CNIH. In my previous employment, I honed abilities in communicating with students, the public and my colleagues. Setting attainable learning goals for students and organizing post-clinic debriefing sessions were maintained with high priority. My collaboration strength, people-centric nature and eagerness to please have afforded me the ability to manage relationships with internal and external teams. I am very detail-oriented, organized and ensure that time management is at the forefront of my teaching to enhance learning opportunities.

My references will confirm that I am conscientious, motivated, reliable and adaptable to new projects and challenges whilst applying critical thinking and problem-solving techniques.

Dear Tonia,

I am writing to ask if you would be willing to become a reference for a position I've recently applied for at the Canadian National Institute of Health (CNIH). I was employed by Algonquin College Faculty of Dentistry between 2016 and 2020 at which time I strengthened various teaching skills and maintained consistent attendance. I also earned high scores on performance evaluations. Overall, it was an instrumental experience where exceptional feedback was received by students and dental faculty.

As I am currently pursuing a bachelor's degree in Dental Science (DH) and with the experience I gained at Algonquin College, it seems I meet the job qualifications at the CNIH. A positive reference from you would enhance my prospects of achieving my academic career goals. I hope to create a reference list by August 25, 2021.

Please let me know if there is any information I can provide to assist you in supporting my reference base. I have attached my résumé for your review.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully,
