Man arrested after Surrey apartment fire

Several people were left homeless and one man was arrested Sunday after a fire ripped through a Surrey apartment building. Firefighters evacuated Bon Terra Apartments near 108 Avenue and 152 Street around 8:30 a.m. At least 20 suites sustained such extensive damage they were no longer inhabitable, firefighters said. - QMI AGENCY

Massive sinkhole shuts Marine Drive

4н > NEWS VANCOUVER

Commuters should steer clear of southeast Marine Drive today to avoid a massive sinkhole. The road caved in Sunday afternoon on Poplar Street, a block west of Fraser Street, leaving a gaping hole nearly three lanes wide and six metres deep. So far, there has been no word on the cause. A gas line was also broken. Marine Drive will be closed in both directions throughout the morning. QMI AGENCY

Massive cable collapses inside B.C. Place

BOB MACKIN QMI Agency

Work on B.C. Place Stadium's $458-million roof replacement was halted Dec. 3 when one of the massive cable nets fell during installation.

A source said the heavy duty cable crashed to the ground and WorkSafeBC was on

scene for two days

"A middle portion of the cable dropped in height when they were raising it into position," B.C. Pavilion Corporation CEO Warren Bucklev said. "There was no one hurt and some minor damage incurred. however construction continued three hours later. There is no delay in schedule."

On Sept. 27, a crane's pendant bar got hung-up on a temporary support cable between one of the 130-ton roof support masts and the centre node.

Meanwhile, minutes of PavCo's Aug. 20 construction committee meeting - obtained via Freedom of Information - said the "schedule is on track for substantial completion Nov. 1, 2011."

The committee discussed "the possibility of advancing the date for substantial completion of the project without incurring significant additional costs.'

Buckley explained that substantial completion is "when the building meets all regulatory requirements and permitting" but did not confirm or deny Nov. 1 remains the date.

"The earlier occupancy stage however is when the building is fully operational, safe and ready for public access," Buckley said. "There is no change in the schedule for occupancy which will be in the fall of 2011."

The first confirmed event is the Nov. 26, 2011 Vanier Cup Canadian university football final.

CITY HIRES FIRM

O SPONSORSHIP Vancouver City Hall has hired a company founded by a former VANOC marketing executive to find sponsors for the city's 125th anniversary next year. Twentyten Group's contract, worth $200,000, was announced last week. The company was founded by Andrea Shaw and shares office space with VANOC at the Landing in Gastown. The anniversary celebrations could cost as much as $7 million. - QMI AGENCY

MARU MEMORIAL

O FUNDING The federal government pledged on Sunday to fund two projects to commemorate Vancouver's Komagata Maru incident. In 1914, the Komagata Maru was turned away after it arrived in Vancouver harbour, but not before 20 of its 376 passengers had died. The Khalsa Diwan Society will use the $186,500 in funding to design a commemorative monument and museum. — QMI AGENCY

Shooting worst in 10 years: Cops

LAURA BAZIUK QMI Agency

Police were back on Vancouver's West Side Monday investigating what could be the city's biggest gang shooting. Officers canvassed neighbours around Oak Street and 22nd Avenue after 10 people were shot - two critically early Sunday morning.

"I heard about 12 shots between two o'clock and 2:08," said resident Ann Oxendale. "Then I heard a woman scream. [I] looked out, saw two cars heading south. They looked to be racing."

Officers arrived to find several people with gunshot wounds in the street. Six men were taken to hospital, as well as three women - one of whom was later released. Const. Jana McGuinness said.

She couldn't describe the injuries. Another victim refused treatment.

Several people were taken into custody.

We have a lot of work to be done on interviews still to determine how all these people fit into this big picture," McGuinness said, adding violence on this scale hadn't happened in Vancouver proper in at least the past 10 years.

Darryl Plecas, a University of the Fraser Valley criminologist, didn't think it would ignite a gang war.

"I would be more apt ... to say it's a spike."

Mayor Gregor Robertson who lives just around the corner from the scene, also heard the gunfire and called 9-1-1.

"I know all of us in the area are extremely concerned about this shocking public display of gun violence," he said in a statement.

"This type of brazen gang activity is unacceptable in our city."

Food porn proves an acquired taste

can't think of anything less sexy than food. Or watching somebody eat. What the hell is horny about a gory, half-devoured plate of mediumrare steer, all red and stringy, sinews and tendons torn and awash in coagulating butter and gravy? If that floats your gravy boat? Then you must think Saw is a chick flick.

No-siree, I don't get the "food porn" craze. Lately, everyone is orgasmic over KFC's Double Down. Two slabs of chicken wrapping around bacon, two kinds of melted cheese and the Colonel's secret sauce. Bun? Why bother?

The Double Down is the Johnny Wadd of food porn, the street hooker of cuisine.

At the other end of the diet scale is Nigella Lawson - the queen of food porn.

It's not difficult to see why men, and women, lust after her. She's startlingly voluptuous and knows it. There is more flirt than flambé, more cleavage than cleavers to her shows and books.

On the Forever Summer cover, for instance, she group-gropes tomatoes, with a look saying "you like 'em stuffed, or stewed?"

Same goes for chef Giada De Laurentiis, who would look hot leafing through a dictionary and who this week de-Maver. There's a famous photo of a bare-bellied De Laurentiis licking a chocolatecovered spoon. If that was someone who looks like me, it would be gross. What's sexual about eating, anywav?

Eating is just a bodily function, and maybe the messiest. Watching someone chew is near last on my list of turn-ons. In fact, it's creepy.

To me, the goriest scene in Inglourious Basterds was not Nazi heads exploding, but Christoph Waltz as Col. Hans Landa eating pastry and whipped cream. Swishing it around in his mouth, that Nazi jaw like a piston, smirking through flecks of foam, stubbing his cigarette in the mess on his plate. Blech.

The nightmare in Stephen King's Stand By Me is not the dead body in the woods, but Lard Ass at the pie-eating contest. I still wake up screaming. Think about it. Eating is just puking in reverse.

That's sexv? "Food porn" is just a brazen way to sell books. On that note, I'm off to a dinner date. I hope she chews with her mouth closed.

GOOD NEWS GOOD SAMARITANS TO THE RESCUE

Police are praising a group of mystery Good Samaritans who rushed to the aid of a critically injured man pinned beneath his own vehicle Saturday. "This renews my faith in human nature." said police Insp. James Hardy. It happened about 4 p.m. in the 200 block of Saddletown Circle N.E., where police say a Geo Tracker lost control and rolled, launching the driver from the mini SUV. "He was thrown out and the vehicle landed on his upper torso," said Hardy. The man was pinned, suffering critical injuries and helpless to free himself from the crushing weight of the vehicle, when numerous passers-by reacted and initiated their own rescue. - QMI AGENCY

Franco returns to TV

Hollywood star James Franco is returning to the small screen — he's signed on to reprise his role on soap opera General Hospital next year. The Spider-Man star made a huge departure from his usual movie projects when he accepted a role on the davtime show in 2009 as a serial killer artist named Franco. He returned to the long-running soap earlier this year to revive his character for more episodes. And now he's signed on to appear in two more segments of the soap opera, which will air on Feb. 25 and 28. General Hospital's executive producer Jill Farren Phelps tells TV Guide the two episode stint will serve as a teaser for a longer story arc featuring Franco, which they plan to air later in 2011. — WENN.COM

VERGARA COMES TO O'NEILL'S DEFENCE

Actress Sofia Vergara has come to the defence of Ed O'Neill following his controversial comments about Jane Lynch's Emmy Award win, insisting her Modern Family co-star's words have been misinterpreted. O'Neill hit the headlines earlier this week after appearing to question whether the Glee star deserved her trophy for Outstanding Supporting Actress for her portrayal of Sue Sylvester on the hit TV series. The veteran actor claimed Lynch played a "one-note character," while he hailed Vergara as "so funny," adding, "I don't think people realize how hilarious she is." But the Colombian beauty has spoken out to put a stop to the controversy and she's adamant her on-screen husband O'Neill simply used the wrong choice of words to express his feelings about the Emmys. Vergara tells news show Access Hollywood, "He didn't mean it like that. I know Ed and of course he loves me and adores me and I'm so happy that he thinks I deserve an Emmy, but he didn't say it like Jane didn't deserve it and I did." — WENN.COM

Michaels preps for heart op

Bret Michaels is readying himself for his upcoming heart surgery in January — he's taking new medication and feeling "positive" about the operation. The Poison star is booked in to go under the knife to repair a hole in his heart and his doctors have implemented a strict new medical regime ahead of the procedure. Michaels admits he found the idea of a heart operation terrifying at first, but he's now feeling much calmer about the looming surgery. He tells People.com, "I gotta tell ya, I'm very positive. I feel positive they're going to do an amazing job. They've done thousands of these operations. We switched out from (blood thinning medication) Lovenox now and there are two new blood thinners (including) Coumadi ... I'd say if everything goes well, I'll spend about three days in the hospital. And then about three weeks after that just really, really taking it easy. (The days after the operation are) the more scary part for me."— WENN.COM

Rimes cheating song angers ex-wife

Eddie Cibrian's ex-wife Brandi Glanville has slammed his girlfriend LeAnn Rimes for releasing a song about cheating partners, insisting the words are "in poor taste." The country singer has been dating former CSI: Miami star Cibrian since last year, when they came clean about their affair and split from their respective spouses. Earlier this week, Rimes released the single Crazy Women, prompting speculation she is singing about Glanville in the track. She sings, "Crazy women are made by crazy men/ He cheats and lies, then plays the victim/ He don't know why they always pick them ..." — WENN.COM

Douglas returns to work

Cancer-stricken Michael Douglas has returned to work for the first time since undergoing gruelling chemotherapy sessions earlier this year. The actor has been battling throat cancer since the summer and completed the draining treatment in October. Douglas has declared he's determined to beat the illness, and he showed signs of his recovery by filming a clip for an online video feature by The New York Times. The Wall Street star appears in a brooding black and white one-minute clip in which he is seen sat in a leather armchair. — WENN.COM

Narnia bombs at North American box office

The third movie in the shaky Narnia fantasy franchise fell flat at the weekend box office in North America. The Chronicles of Narnia: The Voyage of the Dawn Treader opened at No. 1, but with three-day sales of about US$24.5 million. Industry pundits had predicted a $40 million start for the third adaptation of C.S. Lewis' Christian-themed books. - QMI AGENCY

Bridges career just blooming

KEVIN WILLIAMSON QMI AGENCY

To hear Jeff Bridges talk, it's like he has an angel on one shoulder and The Dude on the other.

"One is saying - and not in an aggressive way — 'OK, you're closer to your death, you're mortal, you only have so much time to do what you're going to do. What do you feel like doing? And let's go.' And there's all the things I want to do. And coming closer to your mortality makes you want those things to happen. I find my plate very full, doing all kinds of stuff," says the 61-year-old Oscar winner.

"Then the other part of me is going, 'Will you just relax? Do you want to make the rest of your life a giant homework assignment – just relax and enjoy your life.' So I have to balance those two sides. I don't want to push myself where it defeats weekday mornings the purpose." In other words, from 5:30 to 9 Bridges — like Jeff Lebowski a.k.a. The Big Lebowski - abides. Even as life continues to surprise him.

"It's cool to be young, but I'm enjoying getting older too," he says, laidback and guileless, in a Beverly Hills hotel suite. "I'm going through a particularly wonderful time right now where stuff is starting to bloom."

Not that Bridges has ever been less than prolific. In addition to acting, photography, music and activism, he's also raised three daughters (now all in their 20s) with his wife of 33 years, Susan.

But there's no question the last year has been especially rewarding - and consuming - in thewake of 2009's Crazu Heart. the drama about a washed-up country warbler for which he won an Academy Award. "It was great,"

he says of what most considered an overdue victory.

"To be acknowledged by your guys, the people who do what you do, was wonderful. And especially for that particular film which was all about music." Now Bridges. who has been playing music since he was a child, is recording an album "with T-Bone Burnett, my old buddy," he reports. "That's what it takes - it takes time and being consistent. And not letting the music muscle get atrophied."

Pattinson wanted to be Eminem as a teen

Robert Pattinson is embarrassed to admit he previously pursued a rap career, recording hundreds of demos at age 13. He tells Britain's Top Of The Pops magazine, "The (demos) are very amusing! I was obsessed with Eminem when I was younger. Most of my rhymes were stolen ... They were all like, 'I was raised on these streets,' which was a complete farce because I was actually raised in guite a nice area of London called Barnes. Not very ghetto at all!" - QMI AGENCY

"Sometimes I need to remind myself that TiK ToK only went to No. 1 in January," Ke$ha says of her party-hearty electro-pop jam. "Because it kind of feels like it was 17 years ago." 2010 more or less belonged to this 23-year-old Nashville native, who released her hit debut, Animal, in January, then followed it up last month with a nine-track mini-album, Cannibal. With three songs on Billboard's year-end Hot 100, and 1.1 million copies sold of Animal, according to Nielsen

Reuters How different is your life right now versus this time a year ago?

Are you kidding me? I pretty much feel like I've been reborn into this completely different existence. My entire life has become making music and playing shows, and I love it. I've accepted the fact that my fans are now my family, and I won't be having boyfriends. I'll just be having a really amazing relationship with the radio.

Reuters • Were you prepared for that transformation?

I wasn't clueless. It's just not at all what I expected it to be like. It's really intense — more intense than I ever thought it would be. I remember pulling up to the MTV Video Music Awards in September with Dr. Luke in a DeLorean wearing a garbage-bag dress with the paparazzi chasing me. I was having an anxiety attack, like, T just wrote some pop songs, man!'

Reuters > TiK ToK introduced you to most people. Looking back, do you feel like that was the best possible launch?

I don't know. We didn't really know which song to come out with first. It was kind of a debate, because I didn't initially come out as a rapper; I've always been a singer. So having my first single classified as kind of a rap song felt bizarre to me. But now it's become something of a trademark. And it's becoming more legitimate: I've talked to some of my favourite rap artists over the past year — artists who are idols — and they've given me mad props.

MONDAY DECEMBER 13 2010

Reuters • Do you think timing had anything to do with the song's success?

In terms of the state of America, with the recession? Definitely. It's a celebratory song, but it's not about bottles of champagne in the club and my brand-name clothes. It's just me talking about being somewhat of a bum and having a great time in Los Angeles.

Reuters How will the Ke$ha persona change, now that you're not really a bum any more?

Have you seen me? Yes, I am! All you have to do is look at Cannibal to see that you can still celebrate life in a non-douche bag way. Money really doesn't affect me when it comes to my happiness or deciding who I'm going to date, and that's something I want to hold on to. You can be really happy and you can look like a badass and be a total baller, but it doesn't necessarily have to be in a financial sense.

Blood test may predict heart trouble ahead

A new blood test for a protein called cardiac troponin T may be able to tell whether a seemingly healthy person is at risk of dying from heart disease, U.S. researchers say. The Elecsys Troponin T test by Roche is 10 times more sensitive to spotting the protein released by damaged heart muscle. Those with detectable levels are nearly seven times more likely to die of heart disease within six years. – REUTERS

An out of this world workout

ci-fi starlet Julia Benson has a perfect workout partner. Almost. He's always ready to exercise and he never complains during particularly grueling training sessions. But he only does cardio. He is, of course, a 3 1/2-year-old chocolate lab.

"He definitely keeps me active," the Winnipeg-born actress says in a phone interview from her Vancouver home.

"We run a lot, which is what I love doing the most for exercise. We'll go down and run at the beach (Spanish Banks). Or we'll do some hikes. There's tons of amazing trails around here."

Her cardio partner's name is Bauer.

Most days, their outdoor treks last about 45 minutes. Benson, aka Lt. Vanessa James on sci-fi TV show Stargate Universe, also likes to go in-line skating in the summer "when it's not raining in Vancouver."

Like most savvy fitness enthusiasts, the married 31year-old knows that variety is the spice of a good workout regimen.

"I like to switch things up," she notes.

That includes power yoga twice weekly for 60-90 minutes each session, along with 25 minutes of weight training two times a week.

Pumping iron has helped the five-foot-seven Benson maintain a toned body weight of 126 pounds.

"I find my body responds to weights really quickly," she notes. "Plus, my character is tougher on the show, so I want to make sure I try to bulk up."

Filming for Season 2 recently wrapped, and while she has some other upcoming projects to help her stay motivated to keep fit between seasons, Benson admits she goes through phases of being more and less active.

Yup, she's only human. "The key is to try and be as consistent as you can ... Sometimes you're not going to be able to get to the gym because work is too busy or you're too tired."

Julia's fitness advice

1 Choose a physical activity you enjoy. There are so many different things you can do — just going for a hike, going for a walk, just getting out and doing something.

2 Maintain balance in your life. Don't punish yourself for occasionally eating dessert.

3 Realize the importance of health and fitness. When you're active, your quality of life goes up.

Incense burning tied to asthma in some children

Children from homes where incense is regularly burned have a higher risk of developing asthma, according to a Taiwanese study suggesting that a particular genetic variation could also be involved. Incense has been used for millenia in many cultures' religious and spiritual ceremonies. In parts of Asia, people commonly burn incense in their homes — a practice that is becoming more popular in Western countries as well. – REUTERS

HOW TO REACT TO THE FIRST SYMPTOMS Fortify for cold and flu

MARILYN LINTON Special to QMI Agency

I've had one bout of cold and flu already, and I intend not to have another.

While it's not to late to have your flu shot, it's wise to have some sort of flu treatment plan ready as adults typically have two to four colds between September and May.

Windsor, Ont., naturopath Sara Henderson has a number of recommendations for immune system boosters. In addition to a daily multivitamin this winter, she recommends 2,000 IU a day because of Vitamin D's and up to 1,00 mg of Vitamin C daily to support the immune system.

Dr. Sara, as she's known to her clients, is a firm believer in probiotics and says that choosing a multi-strain probiotic formula can help, as she says, "to arm our immune soldiers to fight the bad guys. A big part of our immune system is in our gut and a probiotic will help to keep our guts healthy and strong."

When it comes to holiday interaction, simply washing hands once won't be good enough, says Dr. Tim Sly, a professor from Ryerson University's School of Occupational and Public Health in Toronto. He suggests washing before digging into the appetizer tray at parties, making sure you don't mix up your wine glass with someone else's, and use serving pieces (not your fingers) at the buffet table

Dr. Sara also suggests adding two cloves of garlic a day to your menu as it's a "natural antibiotic."

Cyrus' image hits new low ... Or is it high?

REUTERS — Home video of singer Miley Cyrus using a bong apparently to smoke the hallucinogenic herb salvia hit the Internet Friday, capping a year which has seen the teen star throw aside her squeaky clean Disney image.

The video obtained by celebrity website TMZ.com was said to have been shot days after Cyrus's 18th birthday in November.

It shows the star of Disney Channel's Hannah Montana giggling and laughing after smoking from a glass pipe, commonly called a bong. TMZ said sources close to Cyrus told the website that the video was shot by one of Cyrus's friends, but the substance was not marijuana. "Is that me tripping!?", Cyrus exclaims in the video, after using the bong and mistaking another person at the party for her exboyfriend, actor Liam Hemsworth

The herb salvia divinorum has hallucinogenic properties but is not illegal in California. According to a 2007 U.S. survey on drug use and health, about one million people had used it that year.

The singer's father, Billy Ray Cyrus, said on Friday he was saddened at the video, which quickly made headlines around the world.

"Sorry guys. I had no idea. Just saw this stuff for the first time myself. I'm so sad. There is much beyond my control right now," Cyrus said in a Twitter posting.

Representatives for Cyrus did not return requests for comment Friday.

Miley Cyrus has sought this year to distance herself from the Disney character she began portraying in 2006. The new image has dismayed parents of some of the younger Hannah fans, whose final episode does not air until the spring of 2011. jobb@@m.com 24H > WORKZO

Economic growth around the corner

B.C.'s economy is expected to grow moderately over the next year, economists are calling. The independent Economic Forecast Council forecasts the province's GDP growth at 3.3 per cent for the year on average. This is up from the 2010 forecast of 2.9 per cent. - QMI AGENCY

Feds spend to help foreign professionals

Ottawa has put up $4 million to help internationally trained professionals enter the Canadian workforce. To improve foreign credential recognition, the federal government has provided the funding to B.C.'s ministry of regional economic and skills development. This is in a bid to help reduce barriers and speed up the process for skilled newcomers to find jobs. - QMI AGENCY

Web tool for small business

SANDY BUEMANN OMI AGENCY

Website Small Business Accelerator is like Google for small business owners but better.

The site is a resource tool connecting small-business minded people to a wealth of information, according to Sandra Singh, the director of UBC's Irving K. Barber Centre.

Small Business Accelerator includes tips on how to write an effective business plan, how to conduct business research and how to access helpful government websites.

It also includes questionnaires, templates and how-to guides.

"It's becoming a place for information that supports innovation across the province," Singh said of the site, launched in partnership with David Lam Management Library.

The site, launched on Nov. 22 in Cranbook, B.C., is aimed at entrepreneurs living in the rural parts of the province.

Work through your doubts

hanging careers always seems to bring on feelings of anxiety and doubt. Such life-altering decisions are sure to make many ask, "what if," especially when such a change comes later in your career.

I assure many of the job seekers who approach me that this feeling is natural. Remember, this thought would not have come to mind if you were happy in your current career or just came to a dead end in your career. Your ultimate goal is to find a career that offers what you want and need even if it takes time to start from the bottom of the ladder.

Here are a couple common questions you may have and how to approach them:

Will a career change lower your earnings?

Before you make up your mind based on salary I suggest researching the position to find out how professionals in that field make it work for them. How quickly can they move up in the position? How is the current market? Try to arrange a meeting with professionals who may be in this field and ask them plenty of questions.

If you foresee a lower income for a few years in your desired position, consider cutting your expenses and banking the money saved.

Don't have the right education or training?

Lacking certifications or degrees can be a roadblock for career changers. Before throwing away an excellent career possibility, consider beginning in an entry-level position that makes it easier to get started in your chosen field. Once with a company, you will be more likely to discover avenues to obtain the training you need, and may even be able to have your employer pay for it.

Working mothers doubled in 30 years

QMI AGENCY — The number of working moms has almost doubled over the past 30 years, though overall women's employment still lags behind men, according to a Statistics Canada report.

Almost 73% of women who had children under the age of 16 living at home were employed in 2009, compared with a mere 39.1% in 1976.

Just over 80% of women without children were employed in 2009, falling short of the national employment average of more than 93%, the study found.

Women also tend to remain concentrated in traditional female occupations, though are beginning to make some inroads into male-dominated fields such as business and finance

In 2009, 67% of employed women worked in teaching, nursing and related health occupations, clerical or other administrative positions, or sales and service occupations. Only 31% of employed men worked in these fields.

Women made up 51.2% of hit by the downturn.

Women made up 51.2% of business and financial professionals in 2009, up from 38.3% in 1987.

The study, which didn't touch on comparative salary levels between men and women, found that women had done better during the recession than did men.

Between 2008 and 2009, the unemployment rate for men increased to 9.4%, while the employment rate for women increased only to 7%.

That's because fewer women were employed in sectors such as manufacturing and construction, which were hardest

REUTERS — In a time when revealed that the number of chain smoking, off-colour jokes and three-martini lunches have largely faded from the workplace, the holiday office party survives.

Despite being toned down amid a shaky economy, sensitized by sexual harassment cases and sobered by the dangers of drunk driving, those parties are a minefield of potential embarrassments and worse.

Hoping to keep bad behaviour at bay, companies may host a party in an art gallery, perhaps during the day, with alcohol limited to beer and wine, experts say. Even the food has gotten healthier and the portions smaller.

"You want it to be fun. It's always a balance between managing your legal risks and also having a fun party," says Michael Johnson of Global Compliance, an ethics training and compliance firm.

Behind much of that conscience is the threat of legal liability. be it for employees driving home drunk or bosses harassing underlings, workplace experts say.

"There's some obvious things, like I don't think many clients are suggesting hanging mistletoe or suggesting, 'oh, let's have a game of Twister,' kind of obvious danger zones," Johnson says.

Despite the pitfalls, almost 80% of companies throw holiday parties, a recent survey showed. The study, by executive search firm Amrop Battalia Winston, companies having parties was down to its lowest level in 22 years to 79%, and two-thirds are restricted to employees only.

- Michael Johnson, ethics training expert

"Parties aren't going away," savs Dale Winston of Battalia Winston, who notes they are less about entertaining clients and drumming up new business than rewarding employees.

But workers, when asked in another survey if they would rather receive a bonus than swill eggnog at an office party, overwhelmingly chose cash. The survey of 1,008 people for Randstad U.S., a worldwide staffing company. found 93% of respondents would ditch the year-end party for more money.

And with research showing companies are planning to spend no more than last year, it is more likely than not a company will host the festivities in its own building.

Although the office party may no longer be an alcoholfueled extravaganza, it is still important to relax, mingle and have a good time, experts say.

"This is the last vestige where people can just show up, have a couple of glasses of wine and socialize," Winston savs.

The trick for a cringe-free party is to find a balance between fun and moderation, corporate behaviour experts sav.

One drink, absolutely. More than two? No way.

"Too many people let loose," says Barbara Pachter, a workplace behaviour expert. "The bottom line is the holiday party is a business event, and people forget that."

Another landmine to avoid is using the party as a moment to flirt with a colleague or make public an office romance.

"It's not the time to flirt," Pachter says. "If you are dating somebody at work and people don't know it, that's not the time to let your guard down, even if you're snuggling all night."

LAWSUITS AT WORK

We're suing more often

QMI AGENCY — Canadian workers are increasingly likely to resort to legal action to resolve disputes with former employers, with claims ranging from wrongful dismissal to discrimination, a survey of human resources professionals found.

Almost 70% of respondents said employees are more likely to bring legal action against their workplace than five years ago, with almost four-fifths saying the situation will be worse again five years from now.

The biggest cause cited in lawsuits was wrongful dismissal, the survey by the Human Resources Professionals Association and Canadian HR Reporter found. Termination and severance pay disputes came second, followed by human rights complaints and discrimination.

> More lawsuits means more fees for lawyers, with 67.2% of those polled saying legal costs to defend against claims from employees had risen 5% or more in the past year. Just over half said those fees had jumped 10% or more and 15.8% said they had risen by a quarter.

> The survey also found that employees were becoming increasingly "system savvy," knowing the options open to them to pursue their grievances. Some also noted that lawyers are encouraging the trend.

The poll was carried out among 535 HR professionals across the country.

companies were more likely to attempt to defraud their employers than their counterparts in smaller businesses, but nearly all of them were caught, according to a new report.

About 48% of large companies reported employee fraud, compared with just 35% at medium-sized corporations, according to a SAS/Leger Marketing survey of more than 1,000 Canadian executives.

Fraudsters at big companies were much more likely to be caught, with only 4% getting away with it, compared with 10% at smaller companies, it found.

More than two-thirds of fraudsters were tracked down after fraud occurred at big companies, with 69% of those in smaller businesses caught QMI AGENCY — Workers at larger after the fact. In one in six cases, the fraud was identified and stopped before it was even carried out.

"There needs to be a paradigm shift where the focus is on catching fraud before it occurs rather than tracking it down after," said Wes Gill, executive lead of enterprise risk management with SAS Canada, adding that new business technology could be a useful tool in helping prevent fraud.

The results also varied across industries. About 55% of food and retail executives reporting wrongdoing, compared with just 23% in the professional consulting, real estate and legal professions. Companies also reported concern about attempted fraud from customers. such as through credit card and insurance scams. About 47% of executives at large companies said they had been affected, versus 30% for mid-sized companies.

In employee fraud cases, B.C. and Quebec ranked higher than Ontario.

Manitoba shines on job front

QMI AGENCY — Manitoba recorded its third straight month in November as the province with the best unemployment rate in Canada.

The province's unemployment rate improved slightly from 5.2% in October to 5.1% in November, allowing Manitoba to maintain the top rank in the country, which it has held since September.

Saskatchewan had the second-lowest rate in November at 5.5%, followed by Alberta at 5.6% and B.C. at 6.9%.

The latest numbers come from Statistics Canada's monthly labour market survey.

Manitoba actually lost 3,000 jobs from October to November, but a coinciding dip in the available labour force allowed the unemployment rate to improve slightly. There were 622.300 jobs in Manitoba last month up from 609,600 in November 2009.

Dunfield signs with Whitecaps

Christmas has come early for midfielder Terry Dunfield. The Vancouver Whitecap earned a contract with the MLS expansion club Friday. "I just can't wait," Dunfield said. "I wish it was March." The 28-year-old Vancouver native had two goals in 11 games after joining the team in August. His contract was announced simultaneously with USSF D-2 defender-of-the-year Greg Janicki. The Whitecaps also cut defenders Luca Bellisomo and Willis Forko and backup goalkeeper Simon Thomas. - QMI AGENCY

t was sweet music to the ears of Ontario MMA fans last week when the UFC finally announced it will hit Toronto with a card at Rogers Center next year. "We are so thrilled with the decision to hold UFC 131 on April 30 in Toronto at the Rogers Centre. It's going to be a big time event, and the biggest in UFC history," said Tom Wright, the UFC director of Canadian operations.

Last Saturday's card in Montreal set a new UFC attendance record but the Toronto event will smash it as Rogers Centre holds more than 65,000 people. However, don't expect the UFC to try and sell out the entire building, Wright added. "We really had no reservations about bringing UFC 131 to the Rogers Centre, but one thing we are not going to do is compromise the fan experience. We are going to configure it for probably between 30,000 and 40,000 people."

The UFC will likely have no problem selling out the venue, especially if George St. Pierre is on the bill.

St. Pierre dominates Koscheck

It was a defining moment for GSP Saturday as he picked apart Josh Koscheck with a beautiful display of jabs, hooks and leg kicks on his way to a unanimous decision.

It was the Montreal native's fifth straight title defence, tying Matt Hughes for the most consecutive title defences in welterweight history. So who in the welterweight division is a legitimate threat to GSP? Jake Shields is considered next in line, but are we starting to see the end of GSP in his current weight class?

The calls for a super fight against UFC middleweight champion Anderson Silva are becoming louder. St. Pierre was asked again about potentially moving up a class.

"If I go up I will have to put more muscle on my body," he said. "If I move up to 185 lbs I will have to stay at 185. I do not want to go up and down. You saw what happened to Roy Jones in boxing, it messes with your reaction time."

Silva fights Vitor Belfort Feb. 5 in Las Vegas. It would be hard to imagine a super fight between GSP and Silva with only a two month turn around. If GSP is on the Hog Town card expect it to be against Shields.

HOSEA CHEUNG QMI Agency

The Canucks may have been on the second leg of back-toback games but it didn't show Sunday.

Instead, the Edmonton Oilers were the ones who looked out of gas.

A night after losing 5-4 in overtime at home, Vancouver outplayed Edmonton at Rexall Place in a 2-1 win over their Northwest Division rivals.

Despite a third period in which they were outshot 14-1, the Oilers scored the lone tally in the final frame to snap Roberto Luongo's shutout bid. Jordan Eberle's goal with just five seconds remaining in regulation ruined what-wouldhave-been a perfect night for the Canucks goaltender, who made 11 stops including a first-period penalty shot by Magnus Paajarvi.

Offensively, the Sedins led the way with two points each to help regain the Canucks' two-point lead in the standings over the Colorado Avalanche.

Alex Burrows opened the scoring for Vancouver, finishing off a pretty passing play by Henrik and Daniel. The victory improves the Canucks' record to 13-1-2 when scoring first.

Henrik doubled the Canucks' lead in the second on another slick setup, this time starting with Ryan Kesler. The centre fed the puck to Daniel, who then threw it across the crease to Henrik. The captain made no mistake, scoring his fifth of the season and second in as many games.

The Canucks finished with 32 shots on Oilers goaltender Devan Dubnyk.

Weather woes in NFL

REUTERS – The New York Giants-Minnesota Vikings NFL game will be played in Detroit on Monday after a huge snow storm caused the Minneapolis Metrodome's inflated roof to collapse on Sunday, forcing the relocation.

The game originally for Sunday had already been postponed after the Giants were stranded in Kansas City when their charter flight was unable to land in Minneapolis because of the storm.

The league was later forced to move the contest when the blizzard ripped open the Metrodome's roof early Sunday morning covering the field in snow.

Several alternate venues were considered, including the University of Minnesota's outdoor stadium and the Super Dome in New Orleans before settling on Ford Field where the Detroit Lions were taking on the Green Bay Packers on Sunday.

The NFL said ticket holders to the Vikings-Giants game would receive preferred seating and any extra seats would be given away free on a firstcome basis.

But getting to Detroit will be a major challenge for both teams and fans as a massive winter storm sweeps across the U.S. Midwest disrupting several NFL games.

Packers' playoff hopes dim The Green Bay Packers' post-season hopes took a hit with a shocking 7-3 loss to the Detroit Lions on a wild Sunday in the NFL that saw snowstorms wreak havoc with several games.

Backup Matt Flynn was unable to spark the Packers attack, which could manage only a 42-yard Mason Crosby field goal.

The Lions (3-10) were also unable to generate much offence behind Drew Stanton, but the third-string quarterback delivered the winning score midway through the fourth quarter when he hit Will Heller with a 13-yard touchdown strike.

The loss dropped the Packers to 8-5, leaving them one game in back of Chicago in the NFC North.

| Pirri eyes top-six spot with | Canada juniors |
|------------------------------|----------------|

TERRY KOSHAN QMI Agency

Kevin Prendergast was contacted by the Chicago Blackhawks a couple of months ago and told to keep an eye on one of their prospects, forward Brandon Pirri.

The message to Prendergast, the head scout for

Hockey Canada, from the defending Stanley Cup champion was that Pirri would be made available to the Canada's junior team selection camp.

Pirri had to earn the right to be invited. He did that, showing in 23 games with the Hawks' American Hockey League affiliate, the Rockford IceHogs, that a boy could play among men.

The 19-year-old centre is now back with his age group at the camp. Prendergast is thinking the Toronto native, who has five goals and five assists with Rockford, can be a top-six forward for Canada when the 2011 world junior tournament opens on Boxing Day in Buffalo.

"He is not the fastest skater in the world, and not the biggest kid in the world, but he has great hockey sense," Prendergast said on Sunday as the selection camp opened at the MasterCard Centre in Etobicoke.

"For a 19-year-old to play a regular shift in the American league, that's pretty good. It's a tough league to play in. He is playing against men, and he has had to go through a different custom in playing the game, but he has come along very well."

KINGSBURG TAKES SILVER

O MOGULS Mikael Kingsburg of Canada won his first career medal at the World Cup moguls season opener Saturday in Ruka, Finland. The native of Deux-Montagnes, Que., took the silver medal in the men's event, posting a score of 24.89 points that was aided by the best air marks in the final. Patrick Deneen of the U.S. won the gold medal while Guilbaut Colas of France was third. Cedric Rochon of Saint-Sauveur, Que., was the nextbest Canadian, finishing fifth, while 2010 Olympic champ Alex Bilodeau was seventh. — QMI AGENCY

DOUBLE BRONZE

O SPEED SKATING Canadians raced to a pair of bronze medals at the World Cup short track speed skating stop Sunday in Shanghai, China. Jessica Gregg of Edmonton was third in the 500 metres and Olivier Jean of Lachenaie, Que., took the bronze in the men's 1500m The men's relay team added a silver medal. Gregg crossed the line in 45.218 seconds, just behind gold medalist Zhao Nannan and runner-up Liu Qiuhong, both of China. - QMI AGENCY

COUSINEAU FIFTH

O SLALOM Julien Cousineau of Lachute, Que., tied a career-best in slalom with a fifth-place finish Sunday at the men's World Cup in Val D'Isere, France, Cousineau, who had a two-run time of one minute, 45.83 seconds, also finished fifth in Schladming, Austria, last year. It was his second top-10 result in as many races and seventh of his career. Trevor White of Calgary finished 12th. No other Canadian finished the race. - QMI AGENCY
