

Theory 100 - Pop Quiz

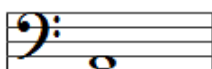

1) It's been a long day, and you're really hungry. You think you can hear your friends outside in P.E. class - they're having a great time. You wish you could join them, but you've got this pop quiz... The first question is asking you to identify the notes, which is something that you're pretty good at, but it reminds you of your first piano teacher, who was really strict and not much fun. Her name was Mrs. Dent, and she taught you all about piano and basic theory, but she didn't really encourage your creativity. Your mom used to get mad at you when Mrs. Dent would complain that you wouldn't pay attention, but you kept taking the lessons anyway, because you really enjoy banging away at the piano. Your friends outside are playing Ultimate Frisbee now! Maybe it's time to try to finish this quiz...

2) One question down. You're feeling pretty good about yourself. Right! The next episode of Attack on Titan is airing tonight! That's pretty exciting. You can't wait to find out what happened to Eren and Mikasa. You love the show because it's dark and about survival like The Walking Dead, but everyone in the show can leap around like Spiderman. That show's great, but sometimes you enjoy funny shows, like Rick and Morty. The commercial about "real fake doors" is one of the most hilarious things you've ever seen! Morty probably has to do tests like this sometimes... on this question, it looks like you're supposed to do something to the chords... but just at that moment, you notice the clock ticking! It's a strangely loud clock, and you can't understand why they didn't put up a quieter one. It's rather rhythmic though... and you start to feel it in 4/4 time. These chords are all seventh chords, and you talked about chord quality last week, which was spirit week. You had an awesome Ness costume, but most people didn't get it, even though you carried around a baseball bat.

