How to Succeed with Physics

We are pleased to invite you to a panel discussion featuring four amazing women who obtained university degrees in physics and are now using the skills, experiences and expertise gained in their physics education to pursue fascinating careers outside of traditional physics research in science, outreach, teaching and writing.

Over the course of this informal evening, panelists will share their career paths and experiences and invite your questions and comments.

Sandy Eix,
Science Learning Lead,
Science World,
Vancouver, Canada.

Marina Milner-Bolotin,
Assistant Professor,
Science Education,
UBC, Canada.

Clara Moskowitz,
Associate Editor,
Scientific American
magazine.

Eileen Pollack,
Professor, Department of English, University of Michigan, USA.

This is a special event brought to you by the International Conference on Women In Physics being held at Wilfrid Laurier University, Aug 5 – 8 , 2014.
