Scenario Presented to Participants

You are free in the afternoon and you got invited to a dinner with your friends. The group is unsure of the time and the place but they do want meet. There is already a group chat started and you have just joined the chat. You will browse through the existing chat and try to contribute to the chat by providing your own suggestion and vote on other people's suggestions. You should try to identify the group consensus reached for time and place.